TIME: 30min

CEFR level: A2-B1

Step 2: I start – Matching exercise

Match each adjective with their opposite.

If you don't know the meaning of an adjective, look it up using Merriam-Webster Dictionary.

happy	sad
complete	incomplete
big	small
interesting	uninteresting
hopeful	hopeless
easy	difficult
legal	illegal

Some opposites use prefixes (like in- (incomplete) or il- (illegal)), but others are totally different words (like happy and sad). In this brick, you will learn more about adjectives and prefixes.

Step 3: I learn - prefixes

Choose option below.

I learn (option 3)

Video ("watch&listen")

Prefixes: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=aET7ax8UM3w> (beg-2:45)

La phrase sous le tableau ne doit apparaître qu'une fois l'exercice terminé.

Step 4: prefixes - Summary

A prefix (il-, ir-, im-, un-, in-, ...) can be added at the beginning of the adjective to change its meaning. (happy > unhappy ; legal > illegal)

The prefix used to make the opposite depends on the first letter of the word concerned:

Prefix		Example
un-	most common	sociable > un sociable, important > un important, caring > un caring
in-		complete > in complete, active > in active
il-	always before an adjective beginning with « l »	legal > il legal
im-	always before an adjective beginning with « m » or « p »	mature > im mature; perfect > im perfect
ir-	before adjectives beginning with « r »	rational > ir rational

Other prefixes can be used as well: a-, anti-, de-, dis- and non-:

Moral > amoral

Social > antisocial

Centralized > decentralized

Honest > dishonest

Toxic > nontoxic

Un préfixe (il-, ir-, im-, un-, in-, ...) peut être ajouté au début d'un adjectif pour en changer le sens.

(happy > unhappy ; legal > illegal)

(heureux > malheureux ; légal > illégal)

Le préfixe utilisé pour signifier le contraire de l'adjectif initial dépend de la première lettre de celui-ci.

Préfixe		Exemple
un-	Le plus répandu	sociable > un sociable, important > un important, caring > un caring
in-		complete > in complete, active > in active
il-	Toujours avant un adjectif commençant par « l »	legal > il legal
im-	Toujours avant un adjectif commençant par « m » ou « p »	mature > im mature; perfect > im perfect
ir-	Avant un adjectif commençant par « r »	rational > ir rational

Les préfixes suivants peuvent également être utilisés : a-, anti-, de-, dis- and non-:

Moral > amoral

Social > antisocial

Centralized > decentralized

Honest > dishonest

Toxic > nontoxic

Maya: What now? Leo: Kevin was completely helpful / unhelpful. He just sat there doing nothing! Maya: That's so irresponsible/responsible. Did anyone say anything? Leo: Not really. Lisa was being patient / impatient as usual—she kept interrupting everyone. Maya: It sounds possible / impossible to work with that group. Leo: Totally. And Tom? Gave us some silly excuse about why he didn’t do his part. Again. Maya: Classic Tom. And what about Sarah? Leo: She was invisible / visible. Didn’t even show up or reply to any messages. Maya: Oof. I hope the professor won’t be too strict if the group project is		Audios à déposer sur le Cloud late.

Step 6: I say

"Voicework"

Pedagogical approach and technical possibilities to be confirmed

Words with more than one syllable in English have a syllable that is pronounced with additional emphasis – a "stressed" syllable. Note that negative prefixes do not have an impact upon which syllable is stressed.

Listen to recordings of the following adjective pairs, and identify which syllable is stressed (David, possible pour les élèves de cliquer sur la syllabe accentuée dans chaque mot?).

happy – unhappy
comfortable – uncomfortable friendly – unfriendly possible – impossible
kind – unkind
patient – impatient
polite – impolite
correct – incorrect

Listen again, record yourself saying the words (for example, using the tool in the xxx icon above) and compare the model with your example, paying particular attention to word stress.

Exercise 3. Listen to the dialogue and select the correct adjectives. Leo: Hey, Maya. Can we talk about the kitchen? Maya: Sure. What’s wrong? Leo: It’s been really tidy/untidy lately. I cleaned everything yesterday, and now the sink is full again. Maya: Oh... that’s probably Sam. He’s kind of careless with dishes. Leo: And unapologetic/apologetic too. He never says sorry or tries to help. Maya: I know. It’s fair/unfair on us. We all live here. Leo: Exactly. It feels respectful/disrespectful. We all agreed to share the chores. Maya: He also plays loud music at night. That’s inconsiderate/considerate when people are trying to sleep. Leo: Do you think we should have a house meeting? Maya: Definitely. Things are becoming impossible/possible to live with.		Réponses en gras Dialogue à déposer sur le fichier Cloud Score /6 (1 point par question)

Step 8: I share

“groupclass”

Write a description of yourself using as many adjectives as possible, illustrating each adjective with a short example. Try to include adjectives and their opposites. (ex. I am impatient: I don't like to wait. I would like to be more patient.)

Be prepared to share with a classmate and compare which adjectives you used and how you used them.

Step 9: I want more

Step 11: For teachers

1. Writing and Speaking – “Two truths one lie”

Each student writes 3 sentences about themselves using at least one adjective with a prefix in each. Two sentences are true, one is false. Classmates ask questions and guess which is the lie.

2. Writing and Speaking

Form teams of 3 or 4 students. Teacher calls out an adjective; teams race to write the correct opposite adjective. (Give 1 point to the fastest team, 0 point if the answer is incorrect or misspelled)
