Step 4: Summary

Some adjectives end in -ed or -ing. (ex. Interested/interesting)

-ed is used to describe how a person feels.

Examples:

- I am interesteded in their presentation
- I was really disappointeded with her attitude.
- He was frighteneded by the movie.
- They are worrieded by the news.
- She’s exciteded about her trip to Japan.

-ing is used to describe the thing or situation that causes the feeling.

Examples:

- *Their presentation is very interesting
- I found her attitude quite disappointing.

- The movie was frightening.
- The news is worrying.
- A trip to Japan sounds exciting.

French:

Certains adjectifs se terminent par -ed ou -ing (ex. interested / interesting).

-ed est utilisé pour décrire ce que ressent une personne.

I am interested in their presentation. Je suis intéressé.e par leur présentation.

-ing est utilisé pour décrire ce qui cause ce sentiment.

Their presentation is very interesting. Leur présentation est très intéressante.

Step 5: I practice 1

“Language work”

Exercise 1. Listen to the dialogue and select the correct adjectives.

Lena: Hey! How was your first day at the new job?

Josh: Honestly, it was a bit tired / tiring. I had to sit through a three-hour meeting.

Lena: Oh no! That sounds bored / boring.

Josh: Yeah, I was completely exhausted / exhausting by the end. But the people were nice.

Lena: That’s good at least! Were you nervous at the start?

Josh: A little. But then I got more relaxed / relaxing once I met my team. They were really welcoming / welcomed.

Lena: Well, I’m excited / exciting for you.

Exercise 2. Match the adjective on the left with its correct meaning on the right.

Tiring	making you feel the need to sleep or rest
Tired	feeling that you would like to sleep or rest
Exciting	causing great interest or excitement
Excited	feeling or showing happiness and enthusiasm
Terrifying	making somebody feel extremely frightened
Terrified	Feeling extremely scared
Bored	feeling tired and impatient because you have lost interest in somebody/something or because you have nothing to do

Boring	not interesting; making you feel tired and impatient
Exercise 3. Select the correct form of the adjective: -ed or -ing. 1. I was really bored / boring during the lecture. 2. I loved that movie. It was so interested / interesting ! 3. She's annoyed / annoying because her phone doesn't work. 4. They looked confused / confusing after we explained the rules. 5. He felt embarrassed / embarrassing after he made a mistake.		Réponses en gras
Step 6: I say  "Voicework" Pedagogical approach and technical possibilities to be confirmed The pronunciation of "-ed" in -ed adjectives may vary (/d/, /t/ or /Id/) Listen and repeat: bored /d/ - tired /d/ - interested /Id/ - annoyed /d/ - confused /d/ - excited /Id/ - frustrated /Id/ - disappointed /Id/ - embarrassed /t/ More information on how to pronounce "-ed" can be found in the "I want more" section below as well as in the "How to pronounce "-ed"" brick. The pronunciation of "ing" can take some practice, as it requires the soft palette (at the back of your mouth) to engage with the tongue. Many speakers (including many native English speakers) will sometimes drop the "g" sound, pronouncing words as "interestin'", "borin'", at the front of the mouth only - which can lead to confusion, and sound lazy. Try these exercises to increase your awareness of your soft palette and its interaction with the tongue. 1) Starting with your mouth open, say a long "ahhhhh" sound. Keep the "ahh" going as you close your jaw and bring the back of the tongue to the soft palette, which stops the air coming out of your mouth – if you keep the voice going, the air (and so the sound) will be coming from your nose instead. Repeat this opening and closing on an "ahhhhh" sound several times, to feel the soft palette at work. 2) The sound "ing" The sound "ing" does not actually begin with the sound "in", in which the "n" part is usually made with the front of the tongue. Instead, once the sound "i" is made, the back of the tongue rises to block the air flow, before suddenly releasing it to produce the "g" sound. Repeat "ing, ing" several times and feel this mechanism at work.		Audios à déposer dans le fichier Cloud

3) Sliding words Now try some words that “slide around” in your mouth, moving from the front to the back: “sing”, “sang”, “song”, “sung” “interesting”, “boring”

Step 11: For teachers 1. Reading activity: [Individual or pair work] Students read a short text provided by their teacher and underline adjectives + double-underline suffixes and explain why each adjective ends in "-ed" or "-ing".

2. Speaking activity:

Students work in groups of 3 or 4. Student A reads a situation prompt aloud (ex. "How do you feel when you're stuck in traffic?"). Student B says how they feel using an -ed adjective ("I'm frustrated"). Student C explains why, using the corresponding -ing adjective ("because traffic is frustrating"). To support students, teachers can provide hint cards showing the first letter(s) and letter count of possible adjectives (e.g., f _ _ _ _ _ d = frustrated).

Situation prompt	Possible adjectives for hint cards
How do you feel when you're stuck in traffic?	frustrated
How do you feel when you forget your phone at home?	panicked
How do you feel during a dull lecture?	bored
How do you feel when someone makes you jump?	surprised
How do you feel when you try a new activity for the first time?	excited
How do you feel when your plans are suddenly cancelled?	disappointed
How do you feel when you watch a horror movie?	terrified
